DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

2. Claims 25, 26, 3-5, and 17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Renn (WO 00/23825, submitted with the IDS filed 2/6/2006).

As to claim 25 and 26, Renn discloses a liquid drop discharge device, comprising: a substratea discharge head discharging a liquid drop to a substrate (items 54, 60 and 64); and trajectory correcting means for applying energy to turn the liquid drop back to a predetermined trajectory when the liquid drop discharged out of the discharge head is diverted from the predetermined trajectory (items 46, 64 and 56). Renn discloses that the energy further comprises light energy (for example, page 6, which discusses laser beams and optical forces). Renn discloses the light beam emitting means includes a laser light source (see page 6). Renn discloses the trajectory correcting means includes means for emitting a light beam surrounding the predetermined trajectory of the liquid drop. (see Figure 4).This item is a head unit disposed opposite the substrate.

As to claim 26, the use of substrate stages is obvious.

As to claim 3, Renn further discloses that the trajectory correcting means drives the liquid drop by "optical forces" generated by the light energy. The optical forces of the light/laser beam is considered light pressure.

As to claim 4, Renn discloses that the trajectory correcting means drives the liquid drop by "optical forces" which are inherently generated when atmosphere around the liquid drop trajectory absorbs the light energy. The optical forces of the light/laser beam is considered derived from the kinetic energy of molecules.

As to claim 5, Renn discloses that the liquid drop contains a photothermal converting material for absorbing and converting the light energy into heat. (See page 9, which discloses heating inside the laser beam)

As to claim 17, Renn is capable of printing.

Conclusion

3. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
